

Employer Deferred Payment Agreement

Southwest Wisconsin Technical College (SWTC) students and the student's employer may sign this agreement to defer payment of the tuition amount from the student to the employer. To be eligible for deferred payment, this signed agreement must be submitted to SWTC Business Office before courses begin. Students may receive a bill, but tuition is due upon invoicing employer. Students must drop courses before the course start date in order to receive a full refund. Refer to the refund policy online at <https://www.swtc.edu/student-resources/financial-resources/student-refunds> for more information.

Students must attach a copy of their student billing statement for employer approval. If the employer is not providing tuition reimbursement for all courses on the statement, they should note accordingly.

WITHDRAWAL/REFUNDS:

To receive a full refund, the student must drop the course before the course start date. Once a course begins, the refund amount for a course is based on the official withdrawal date relative to the number of days the class has met. The refund period begins the first day the course meets, not the first day a student attends it.

Non-attendance does not constitute a cancellation of registration, and the employer will be responsible for tuition and fees.

It is the employer's responsibility to have an agreement with their employee for repayment back to the employer for these situations.

- Student does not drop before the start of the course(s)
- Student does not satisfactorily complete or pass the course(s)
- Student leaves employment with the employer

INVOICING TO THE EMPLOYER:

The tuition cost will be invoiced to the above named Employer after 20% of the course(s) have been completed. Payment is due upon receipt of invoice from Southwest Wisconsin Technical College (Southwest Tech).
